

KEPT A YACHT'S CREW IN TERROR FOR THREE DAYS

John Nielson, Fireman on Altireus, Becomes Religious Fanatic.

MEN IN FEAR OF HIM

Moods Changed as He Kept Up Inquiries About Their Souls.

After a three days' reign of terror on board Millionaire George H. Biddle's yacht, John Nielson, a religious fanatic, was today taken to the Kings County Hospital.

Nielson was a quiet Swede giant, who has been employed as a fireman on the steam yacht Altireus, owned by Barker Draxel, of Philadelphia. Recently Mr. Draxel bought a new yacht from Baron Rothschild, and the Altireus has been docked at Manning's yacht basin, at the foot of Columbia street, Brooklyn. The old crew was left in charge of Engineer Albert Thompson.

Until three days ago Nielson did his duties quietly and without any unusual actions. But on Monday he began to act queerly. He lost his usual quiet and began to talk loudly and incoherently. He began taking members of the crew aside and with roving glances and unconnected phrases asking them about their souls.

The sailors didn't pay much attention to John until he started laughing hysterically and ending in tears. Monday night he was unbearable with his changing moods of laughing and crying. The noise kept every one awake all night. Yesterday he was under surveillance.

Boat Carl Larson was walking along the dock when Nielson rushed up to him and seized him excitedly, demanding: "Is it a comfortable life? When are you going to die—yourself or me?" "Not me," said Larson, shaking the embrace and ducking to shudder. The boat told every one that Nielson was going to kill somebody and last night the crew took turns watching while the crazy fireman paraded the deck shouting songs at the top of his voice.

Early today the crew came out and the engineer who had hoped that Nielson's mania would pass, sent at daylight to the Hamilton avenue station. Six policemen arrived on the run and went on board prepared to take Nielson with no formality. The fireman thought differently and a great chase began.

Over decks, up rigging and down below rushed the crazed man, eluding cunningly the six bluecoats who scrambled after him. After an hour's chase they cornered him, but they didn't take him without a big fight.

In the mix-up several cops lost brass buttons and their trousers were badly ripped. When the fighting Swede was finally overcome he was thrown into the patrol wagon and hurried to Kings County Hospital for observation.

A VICTOR Talking Machine OR An Edison Phonograph

And 12 Records of your own selection for $1 down. Balance in Weekly Payments of One Dollar.

POSITIVELY the best and most liberal offer ever made in connection with these marvellous entertainers. This announcement is doubly attractive because of its timeliness. What can be better for the parlor, sitting room, lawn or porch during Spring and Summer than an Edison or Victor? These wonderful instruments cover practically the entire field of vocal and instrumental music—and so perfectly that it is often actually difficult to realize that it is a talking machine—not a real voice or band.

2000 Dozen Men's Neglige Shirts

39c

A Price That Just About Covers the Actual Cost of Making. All Sizes—Any Color or Pattern You Could Wish For—Fit and Wear Guaranteed.

These shirts are "seconds" from one of the three biggest shirt makers in the country. If they had passed the hawk-eyes of the inspectors you could never have them for anything like this price. As it is, you get them at 39c and you will never know the difference, for the imperfections amount literally to nothing at all.

We are very careful about the "imperfects" we handle—only in a few instances do we sell them at all, and never when the faults in the goods are big enough to balance the reduction in the price. But there are some high-class, conscientious factories in which a pin-prick in the fabric or a bad stitch in the buttonholing is enough to take a shirt out of the first class. "Seconds" from such factories are worth getting at such terrific price reductions.

A Remarkable "Home Run"!

Never before in the history of any American city has there been such a "running" after homes as has marked the Real Estate activity in and around Greater New York since this year's grass began to grow.

This unprecedented demand for houses, building lots, acreage and farms has driven realty valuations higher and higher, making many a property owner wealthy beyond his fondest hopes.

When one considers how New York has grown in the past and stops to realize that it is growing faster to-day than ever before, the true value of Real Estate as an investment becomes apparent.
